
A value of 2.0 means the step took half as long as the naive kernel at the same particle count. The dashed line is the naive kernel itself.