
Twenty floating point operations per interaction, the conventional count. The rise with particle count is the GPU filling up.